

SESSION #1

Recruiting and Retaining Top Talent

People are an organization's most valuable asset, which means it is imperative that executives effectively manage personnel in a way that aligns with the organization's strategy. This is especially true as record numbers of talented workers are leaving their organizations to pursue new opportunities. Through interactive discussions and problem-solving activities, this session will help participants learn and practice evidence-based talent management practices. One area of focus will be on the process of strategically recruiting employees into appropriate roles through sound work design and selection practices.
